Use of Electude at Centennial College

By: John Post, Professor of Automotive Technology, Centennial College

May 2016

I like to use Electude products for both my own knowledge and that of my students.

I find that Electude is a fabulous tool in the classroom as it allows me to give the students a true visualization of how a component operates.

I find it especially useful as a reinforcement tool after teaching them the conventional theory. To be able to use Electude's interactive illustrations as an added boost to the information I've already given them really gets the message across.

The Electude Simulator is another fantastic tool that I introduce all of my students to, the fact that it is free online is just unbelievable.

When you hear students talking about trouble shooting the various challenges and comparing tool choices instead of discussions about the latest You Tube video, it's a very good feeling. I would like to thank Electude for developing such fantastic products; I only wish they were available 30 years ago.
